PREFACE.

The Genealogical Memoranda contained in the following pages do not by any means constitute a complete register of the entire family connection. That result, however desirable it may be, is rendered difficult, if not impossible, by the number of descendants and their dispersion throughout the West and South. Nor is it claimed for these memoranda that they are free from error in all their details. Every effort has been made to secure entire accuracy, and much time has been spent in verifying names and dates, but, even with every precaution possible, there are doubtless errors and omissions.

The Record is made up of scattered data, many of which are fragmentary, and some, at times, conflicting; but it is hoped that the various items of information, gathered from every available source, are here classified in an intelligible and harmonious form.

For the Record of the first three generations exclusive credit must be given to IV. 5 JOSEPH SNIVELY (b. Dec. 12, 1786), line of III. 4 JOSEPH, whose publication of a Genealogical Register, about twenty years ago, saved many of the older data from oblivion, and suggested the present effort to bring the Family Record down to a more recent date. Such an effort is the more needed because copies of the original pamphlet cannot now be obtained.

For the general accuracy of the Record, credit is mainly due to V. 3 BENJAMIN SNIVELY (line of III. 4 JOSEPH), who has kindly examined the tables while in process of preparation, and has frequently supplied names and dates which were wanting. For the Record of the present generation the compiler is indebted to the heads of families not yet separated by marriage or death, to whom especial acknowledgments are made in their respective places.

Preface.

Many names are necessarily omitted because unknown. Whole families have removed to different parts of the West and South, to which no clue could be obtained. But all that could be secured have been inserted here, even though the result is somewhat fragmentary and incomplete.

The original plan included only those whose parents or grandparents were born SNIVELY, but the descendants of the daughters have in some instances been traced further down, chiefly because the data were furnished incidentally to the main line.

It is hoped that the preservation of these memoranda in permanent form may contribute, in the future, to a more complete record of all the branches of the family; a result which may be reached, if those to whom these memoranda may come will communicate their defects to the compiler, together with whatever other data they may possess, as a contribution toward a second and more complete edition. But whether this be accomplished or not, a more immediate result certainly must be a better understanding of the mutual relationship of kindred, who, however scattered in residence, are yet united to each other by the tie of a common ancestry and a common name.

HISTORICAL NOTE.

The original ancestor of the SNIVELY family in the United States was JOHANN JACOB SCHNEBELE, who was born in Switzerland, A. D. 1659. In 1714 he came to this country to escape religious persecution in his own, and availed himself of the religious freedom guaranteed in the province of WILLIAM PENN. He settled in Lancaster County, Pa., which at that time included the whole territory as far west as the Susquehanna River, and identified himself thoroughly with the interests of his adopted country by being naturalized in Philadelphia, Oct. 14, 1729, "in the third year of the reign of GEORGE II."

Of his children, we have the record of only one son,

Historical Note.

JACOB, who removed westward, and settled near the present town of Greencastle, Franklin County, Pa., where many of his descendants still reside. He was married twice. There is no existing record of the first marriage, except that the issue was two sons, JOHN, who removed first to Frederick County, Md., and from there went westward to Ohio, where he became the progenitor of a large posterity, many of whom now reside in Illinois; and CHRISTIAN, who remained in Franklin County, Pa., and whose descendants still occupy the land which has belonged to this branch of the family for one hundred and fifty years. The date of the death of his first wife is not known.

In 1736 he married BARBARA EBERLE, his second wife, a woman of strong character, as family tradition tells us, who combined the habitual thrift of the German Swiss with the energy of the American pioneer. By her he had five sons, HENRY, JOSEPH, ANDREW, MICHAEL and JACOB. Of the first three of these we have tolerably full records preserved;

Historical Note.

MICHAEL died unmarried ; and JACOB removed to the western part of the State of New York, where some of his descendants still reside, though most of them have removed farther westward. A list of his sons is included, and one family of his grandchildren.

The genealogy thus includes six lines, viz.: JOHN, CHRISTIAN, HENRY, JOSEPH, ANDREW and JACOB, and the details, so far as we have them, have been prepared by surviving members of each of these branches.

The orthography of the name varies in different generations. The original form, Schnebele, of the first generation, changed in the third to Snaively, Snavely and Snaivele. In Maryland it is still spelled Schnebly, though pronounced as if spelled in the modern way, and the name also appears as Schnabel. In the only instance in which it has been found in English history, it is spelled Schnebbelie,* the name of the draughtsman of the Society of Antiquaries, in London, in the last century. The present style of spelling the name is undoubtedly the most incorrect yet invented, but it must probably be used until some branch of the family has the courage to return to the original orthography, Schnebele, or to one of its earlier variations, Schnabel or Schnebly, the latter of which represents the original more nearly than any other.

* Vid. Chambers' "Book of Days," ad loc. Dec. 13.

Historical Note.
